Situation

- During the month President Iván Duque extended the national Mandatory Preventive Isolation on three times. On 5 May the isolation was extended until 25 May through decree 636<sup>1</sup>; later, on 22 May, through decree 689<sup>2</sup>, until 31 May; and finally, on 28 May, an extension of the measure was issued under decree 749, from 1 June to 1 July<sup>3</sup>. Air, land and river borders with Brazil, Ecuador, Panamá, Perú and Venezuela remained closed. Restrictions on national and international air transport, inter-municipal transport and prohibition of crowds in public places also continued during May.
- On 26 May, the Colombian Government participated in the International Donors Conference in solidarity with Venezuelan Refugees and Migrants. During the closing remarks, President Iván Duque thanked donors for the announced aid and called for more agile disbursements<sup>4</sup>.
- On 15 May, Brazilian and Colombian authorities agreed on four key measures in response to the critical situation at the Amazon border area: strengthening the military presence, establishing a communication protocol for daily monitoring, integration of both Ministries of Health to establish joint protocols, and creation of a transitional ad hoc group conformed by several ministries and migration authorities to coordinate actions<sup>5</sup>.
- Colombia Migration announced that, as of 31 March, there were 1,809,872 Venezuelans in the country, 1,025,638 in irregular situation and 784,234 regulars, indicating a 0.9% decrease in the number of Venezuelans living in Colombia<sup>6</sup>. Additionally, as of 28 May, around 68,000 Venezuelans have returned since the closure of the border.

In May, over 3,400 beneficiaries received one or more services through 14 RMRP direct and implementing partners, in 16 municipalities of 11 departments, in border and transit areas, as well as areas where refugees and migrants have an intention to stay. The operation continued to be adapted in accordance with the guidelines issued by the Ministry of Education, particularly Ministerial Directive No. 11, which provides general guidelines for initiating the process of planning a gradual and progressive return to educational institutions, on an alternating basis and in coordination with the Secretariats of Education. In this sense, the activities for the continuity of learning at home advanced and, in the other hand, assistance to the Ministry of Education and the Secretariats of Education began, in order to develop mapping activities and to advance in the design and implementation of protocols for the return to presential classes: in May, the Education sector / Education in Emergencies Cluster supported the Secretariats of Education at the local level, to develop the mapping of educational needs in Norte de Santander and Nariño.

During the month, more than 1,900 children and adolescent refugees, migrants, returnees and members of the host communities accessed non-formal and formal education in emergencies services. In addition, 1,882 school-age children from Venezuela received school kits and were enrolled in national educational institutions, where they were supported to continue their academic process, including the delivery of school kits.

Feature story: Adda Williana and the syllable "wi"

Adda Williana is 3 years old and, like her four brothers, her name begins with the syllable "wi" in honor of her father, William. Adda and her family arrived in the city of Arauca in August 2019 from Aragua state in Venezuela, which is more than 16 hours away from the capital of the department of Arauca.

When they arrived in Colombia, their father started working selling lemons and recycling, to get resources and pay for the place where they lived. As he walked around Arauca every day, William came across a to a friendly space from UNICEF, a place that provides protection for refugee and migrant children and adolescents, where they receive psychosocial support through games and activities.

Adda loves to learn and play. / UNICEF

That's how his wife and children began attending this friendly space every day since September 2019, while William was out working. There, they played, learned and laughed as they shared in community. At noon, they would walk to the World Food Programme (WFP) canteen for lunch and, in the afternoon, they would return to the friendly space to continue sharing with their friends.

The first day Adda arrived at the friendly space, she was afraid and wouldn't let go of her mother's hand. There were many children, including some she had seen in the community canteen. Adda looked at the colors, the teachers and the games while, little by little, she got involved in that place where they were received with love and smiles.

Adda and her brothers had never been to a place like this before, and they liked it very much because they had fun playing, although they missed going back to school to learn. Thanks to the help of their teachers, her older siblings resumed their studies at the school in Santafé, which they attended every day before the presential classes were suspended due to the COVID-19.

Adda's favorite activity is having her dad read her stories, although she likes it better the way her teacher Merly used to, so her dad had to learn to change voices every time a new character appeared in the stories. For Adda, William is the most representative figure: he takes care of her, teaches her and gives her love. He makes her drawings on sheets of paper for her to color, improving her motor skills and exploring her creativity and imagination.

As part of the COVID-19 emergency, the friendly space team communicates with Adda, her brothers and her parents through calls or WhatsApp to share activities and homework. At the beginning of the quarantine, it was difficult for Adda to understand why the friendly space was closed and why they could not get out, but thanks to the support provided by the teachers, she now knows what COVID-19 is and how to properly wash her hands to prevent it. Additionally, she participates in all the games and her parents share videos of her dancing, painting and singing her name with the syllable "wi".

UNICEF is working with communities, institutions and partners to prevent the transmission of COVID-19. Moreover, the 114 Child Protection Spaces that the GIFMM partners have at the national level have adapted their response to the pandemic, according to the biosecurity measures stipulated by national authorities and in coordination with the Colombian Institute of Family Welfare (ICBF), so that children, adolescents and their families continue to have access to the adapted services provided by these spaces.

In May, more than 33,300 beneficiaries received one or more types of protection assistance through 50 RMRP direct and implementing partners, in 76 municipalities of 26 departments, in border and transit areas, as well as areas where refugees and migrants have an intention to stay.

The protection sector continues to identify and activate referral pathways and to offer protection services through responses adapted to preventive isolation measures: hotlines, virtual media, social networks and the gradual opening of some services offered by the Support Spaces in border areas, in line with PAHO/WHO guidelines.

In coordination with the Shelter sector of the Multisector Subgroup, a toolkit for eviction situations was developed, with the aim of having elements to monitor, prevent and respond to cases that arise. Along with the Regional Protection sector, progress was made in preparing key messages for populations who have the intention to return to Venezuela. Similarly, a tool for identifying cases of xenophobia is also being developed, and material is being prepared to respond to the needs of LGBT+ refugees and migrants. Gender-based violence, xenophobia, child protection and the increase in returns exacerbated by COVID-19 continued to be a priority for the sector.

Over 13,800 girls and boys received specialized child protection services, to prevent and respond to violations of rights during their migration process, including access to care and shelter spaces for unaccompanied children and/or adolescents often living on the street, in close coordination with the Colombian Institute of Family Welfare. Also, more than 9,900 refugees and migrants received legal assistance, representation or advice, including 83 children.

More than 6,400 people, including refugees, migrants and host communities received services in various Support Spaces, and over 7,600 people accessed protection services such as support and guidance on how to access rights and assistance.

In addition, more than 1,200 people were trained in the prevention of and response to GBV in the context of mixed migratory flows, and over 540 refugees and migrants received information services related to the prevention of and response to GBV, through community strengthening initiatives and guidance on protection routes. Finally, 53 persons at risk of trafficking participated in prevention activities related to the creation and dissemination of risk indicators, identification of warning signs, as well as assistance and reporting route, and 12 persons received assistance services to address trafficking situations.

Local Coordination

Local GIFMMs, the field level representation of the national platform, are spaces for strategic coordination of the operational response at the local level, working in close collaboration with the local authorities' coordination mechanisms.

- In Antioquia, the local GIFMM was in close coordination with the Mayor's Office, providing support in the delivery of more than 8,000 food packages in the 12 municipalities of Medellín. The response also included the implementation of temporary shelters with biosecurity measures and health days carried out in these shelters, as well as the delivery of multipurpose cash transfers to 2,900 families in Medellín and Apartadó to cover for food, rent and basic needs of the refugee and migrant population in these municipalities.
- In Arauca, support was provided for the installation of 879 handwashing facilities in settlements in the municipality of Arauca, and also on the border crossing at José Antonio Páez International Bridge. Similarly, during the month, the local GIFMM was in coordination with the authorities for the delivery of food, hygiene, cleaning and sleeping kits, cleaning and food supplies, and deliveries of seed capital and assistance to entrepreneurship activities, as well as support with cash transfers for rent payment. In coordination with the Ministry of Education, support was provided to children and adolescents in virtual classes and to teachers through dynamic learning strategies to guarantee that students keep enrolled and assisting to their classes.
- The local GIFMM in Bogotá was in articulation with the Mayor's Office to provide shelter to refugees and migrants in temporary shelters such as La Maloka, Volver, Normandy, and Ocobos. The assistance also continued in cash transfers and water and sanitation. Also, progress was made with the delivery of hygiene kits in the municipality of Soacha, and a virtual meeting was held between the GIFMM and the Venezuelan population organizations present in Bogotá, Soacha, Chía, Tocancipá and Tunja, and finally 400 food supplies were delivered to the different organizations, in support of the health emergency in Bogotá.

- In Cesar, the local GIFMM continued guiding the population on issues of access to health, water and sanitation, shelter, and cash transfers for shelter and payment of rent, through the hotlines provided. In coordination with the national Government, more than 5,000 food supplies were delivered and, jointly with the Colombian Family Welfare Institute, sleeping, household, cooking and cleaning kits were provided to some Child Development Centers.
- In order to promote articulation and dialogue on the response to refugees and migrants, the local GIFMM on the Caribbean Coast held a meeting with Venezuelan population organizations in the departments of Atlántico, Bolívar, and Magdalena. Also, hygiene kits, money transfers, and legal advice were provided to the population in Puerto Colombia (Atlántico); six tents were delivered to Cartagena (Bolívar) for triage care of respiratory symptoms; and in Santa Marta (Magdalena), coordination was carried out with local authorities to address the risk of eviction and define the response in shelter for people living on the streets.
- In La Guajira, temporary shelters and the hotel network remained active to guarantee preventive isolation with protection, health, food and education measures, among others, in Riohacha and Maicao. The local GIFMM continued to provide support in the form of cash transfers, food vouchers, cash, and e-vouchers, and also worked with local authorities to provide food supplies for vulnerable populations in Maicao, Fonseca, Uribia, Manaure, San Juan and Barrancas. Additionally, health support and technical assistance were provided to the Ministry of Health, hospitals and local authorities; 27 Refugee Housing Units (RHU) were set up in two hospitals; 11 tents were delivered in Maicao, Riohacha, Uribia, and San Juan, and medical supplies and equipment were provided to the hospitals in Maicao, Riohacha, and San Juan.
- In Nariño, the local GIFMM and the Mayor's Office of Ipiales worked closely to install portable hand washing facilities and other infrastructure. Also, hygiene kits were delivered to strengthen the WASH response, and the parking area at the transport terminal was set up to increase accommodation capacity. Members of the GIFMM supported with hygiene kits, kitchen kits, and food assistance, as well as health screening in coordination with the Municipal Health Secretariat, the adaptation of the site with sanitary batteries, sinks and the installation of tents. An RHU was installed as a point to deliver hot food rations, and the local GIFMM brought continued support in 8 temporary shelters and 7 hotels.
- In Norte de Santander, the second day of food deliveries was held in the La Parada sector in the municipality of Villa del Rosario, in coordination with local authorities and the Border Management. Also, handwashing facilities were installed in the Villa del Rosario municipal market. Assistance was also given in food deliveries, first aid, access to sanitary batteries, hydration points, and screening for the population on the border crossing at Simon Bolivar International Bridge. The Centre for Transitional Assistance to Migrants (CATM) was opened as an isolation area for the refugee and migrant population referred by other partners or possible cases for isolation.
- In Santander, routes were carried out on the roads taken by people transiting by foot between Bucaramanga and the village of El Picacho (municipality of Tona), to identify cases of malnutrition and cases of health vulnerability for first aid. Characterization of the population in the Water Park was conducted to identify their needs and possible response in shelter. Finally, assistance continued in the areas of health, general medicine, food assistance, and cash transfers, and in coordination with the Mayor's Office of Bucaramanga, nutrition and health care were provided to refugees and migrants accommodated in six hotels and shelters in the city center.
- In Cali, priority primary health care, psychosocial care, COVID-19 awareness and prevention activities were carried out, and hygiene kits, face masks, medical supplies, and medicines were delivered from the Mobile Unit (State Social Enterprise) and to other health institutions. Moreover, potential beneficiaries of cash transfers and food vouchers were identified in the municipalities of Palmira and Jamundí, and the identification of potential beneficiaries of food vouchers continued in other municipalities of the department. Finally, the dialogue continued with organizations of the Venezuelan population to identify the needs in the communities and monitor people in transit and at risk of eviction went on.
