Operational Context

According to the Sudanese Humanitarian Aid Commission (HAC), there was an influx of 6,520 South Sudanese in West Kordofan State. Most of the arrivals are women and children and are in need of immediate assistance, including access to health services. WFP and WHO have been requested to assist, while UNHCR will provide non-food items (NFIs) once it is approved. New arrivals are expected to continue in the coming days.

Seven new arrivals (two households) were identified at the Kharasana reception area, West Kordofan, on their way to join relatives in Khartoum. The arrivals identified themselves as coming from Unity State. UNHCR Kadugli arranged accommodation and meals for two days, and facilitated their transportation.
