The ‘Jordan Compact’ presented at the 2016 London conference sets out a series of major commitments aimed at improving the resilience of refugee and host communities, focusing mainly on: LIVELIHOODS and EDUCATION.

WHAT WAS COMMITTED?

- No formal plans communicated for every school to offer a safe, inclusive and tolerant environment with psychosocial support available to refugee and Jordanian children.
- No comprehensive plan for vocational training or tertiary/higher education opportunities for all vulnerable youth.
- Financial constraints, lack of all necessary documentation, lack of infrastructure and long distances/transportation remain the main barriers to ensure every child will be in education.
- Not enough space or funding for government-led initiatives to address education access and retention issues, especially for the catch-up programme to reach 25,000 Syrian children aged 8-12 and drop-out programmes for children aged 13-21.
- Predictable, multi-year funding (from donors) to meet the timeframes committed to by the Jordanian government. Children who are out of school also need access to quality education and support; i.e. informal and non-formal education catch-up programmes, alternative learning centers, remedial, homework support, life skills, and extracurricular activities.

WHAT IS NEEDED?

- Quality and learning outcomes need to be the measure of success in education for all children.
- Address violence and social cohesion in and around schools, and offer psychosocial support services.
- Remove barriers such as valid residency, evidence of last grade attended or birth registration for Syrian refugee children to access education and remain in schools.

---

Barometer of success

- Low
- Fair
- Excellent

EDUCATION

Donors pledged $97.5m to fund open and run 102 additional double shift public schools (in addition to the 98 schools last year) for 50,000 Syrian refugee children.

Provision of some vocational training opportunities for Syrian youth, donors fund some scholarships.

1,000 Syrian volunteers to support as classroom assistants once identified.

165,000 Syrian refugee children enrolled in public schools as of 5 October, including 45,000 already registered in 95 double shift schools (though not all are opened yet).
What was committed?

Support Syrian refugee small business and entrepreneurship to drive job creation in Jordan

Rebuilding Jordanian host communities by adequately financing through grants the Jordan Response Plan.

Mobilising sufficient grants and concessional financing to support the macroeconomic framework (...) as part of Jordan entering into a new Extended Fund Facility program with the IMF.

The government will undertake the necessary administrative changes to allow for Syrian refugees to apply for work permits both inside and outside [development] zones.

Syrian refugees will be allowed to formalise their existing businesses and set up new, tax-generating businesses (...) by the summer (2016). The removal of ‘any restrictions preventing small economic activities within the camps’.

What is needed?

Access to work permits must be simplified: clearer procedures and removal of fees associated with their delivery.

Develop employment creation policies for Syrian refugees and host communities based on the labour market review underway by MoL.

Address structural barriers for Syrian refugee women to access livelihoods (transport, child care, safe working environment, GBV and technical and vocational education).

Implement the necessary administrative changes to allow for Syrian refugees to apply for work permits both inside and outside [development] zones.

Allow skilled Syrian labour, not only semi-skilled labour to work.

Improve the protection environment of Syrian refugees to access livelihoods (legal status, freedom of movement, decent working conditions, including addressing GBV).

Broaden the understanding of right-to-work for Syrian refugees which goes beyond access to work permits only.

Challenges

Work permits linked to a specific employer, discouraging seasonal or predominantly informal sectors uptake. Exceptions for ILO pilots through cooperatives within the agricultural sector.

Lack of clarity on social security payments, fear of losing asylum status, reduced humanitarian assistance or forced relocation to camps remain major barriers to requesting a work permit.

Refugees continue to lack access to formal financial and banking services necessary to promote small business development.

Processes for Syrian refugees seeking to formalise existing businesses or set up new small or home businesses inside or outside the camps remain incompletely articulated.

Progress

EU-GoJ relaxation rules of origin imports available to producers in 18 industrial areas and development zones which employ 15% of Syrian refugees, though little intake so far.

GoJ loan scheme established for unemployed Jordanian youth to support SMEs.

GoJ–IMF $700m extended fund facility approved.

EBRD wastewater municipal infrastructure project and WB concessional loan economic opportunities project to improve job opportunities for Syrians.

Ongoing awareness-raising campaign to increase the understanding of local authorities and Syrian refugees on the process to access work permits.

$3.4b committed for bilateral aid, development, loans, and JRP (donor reported).

Rebuilding Jordanian host communities by adequately financing through grants the Jordan Response Plan.

Support Syrian refugee small business and entrepreneurship to drive job creation in Jordan.

What is needed?

GoJ–IMF $700m extended fund facility approved.

EBRD wastewater municipal infrastructure project and WB concessional loan economic opportunities project to improve job opportunities for Syrians.

Ongoing awareness-raising campaign to increase the understanding of local authorities and Syrian refugees on the process to access work permits.

$3.4b committed for bilateral aid, development, loans, and JRP (donor reported).

Support Syrian refugee small business and entrepreneurship to drive job creation in Jordan.

Rebuilding Jordanian host communities by adequately financing through grants the Jordan Response Plan.

Mobilising sufficient grants and concessional financing to support the macroeconomic framework (...) as part of Jordan entering into a new Extended Fund Facility program with the IMF.

The government will undertake the necessary administrative changes to allow for Syrian refugees to apply for work permits both inside and outside [development] zones.

Syrian refugees will be allowed to formalise their existing businesses and set up new, tax-generating businesses (...) by the summer (2016). The removal of ‘any restrictions preventing small economic activities within the camps’.

Access to work permits must be simplified: clearer procedures and removal of fees associated with their delivery.

Develop employment creation policies for Syrian refugees and host communities based on the labour market review underway by MoL.

Address structural barriers for Syrian refugee women to access livelihoods (transport, child care, safe working environment, GBV and technical and vocational education).

Implement the necessary administrative changes to allow for Syrian refugees to apply for work permits both inside and outside [development] zones.

Allow skilled Syrian labour, not only semi-skilled labour to work.

Improve the protection environment of Syrian refugees to access livelihoods (legal status, freedom of movement, decent working conditions, including addressing GBV).

Broaden the understanding of right-to-work for Syrian refugees which goes beyond access to work permits only.

29,411 work permits issued to Syrian refugees (though only 1% to women) and extension of grace period for their issuance free of charge until December 2016.

29,411 work permits issued to Syrian refugees (though only 1% to women) and extension of grace period for their issuance free of charge until December 2016.