Karen Groups Aim to Strengthen Customary Land Management System in KNU Areas

Karen News, 4 June 2019

Hundreds of Karen representatives from 56 different groups gathered to strengthen Karen customary land management systems at a seminar held at Lay Wah, Karen State from May 29 to 30, 2019.

The Kaw Customary Land Seminar was attended by 519 people including representatives from local community and civil society, donors, INGOs, political parties, and officers of the Karen National Union.

The post seminar statement said, Kaw is the Karen customary land management system. This is land which is collectively used, managed, conserved and governed. These practices are based on the conservation of land, forest, water, and other natural resources, and emerge from a combination of traditional value systems and traditional/customary law.

Presentations at the seminar said there are 198 Kaw customary land systems in Kawthoolei (Karen areas under KNU administrations) and these customary land management systems successfully provided land protection and sustainable livelihoods, and are still relevant and applicable to the current situation.

Padoh Saw Nay Tha Blay, head of the Karen Agricultural Department said Kaw principle can be linked to federalism.

“Kaw management system allows regional self-determination over territory and we want to strengthen this and make more people aware of this system.”

The seminar statement explained the Kaw system “contradicts the Myanmar government’s land laws, as it allows for collective participation in political decision-making. Suppressing such customary systems hinders the peace building process, preventing the establishment of federalism. The Myanmar government’s land laws therefore must be abolished and accordingly rewritten.”

The KNU and Karen environmental groups vowed to continue to strengthen and implement the Kaw customary land governance systems in line with the KNU’s land and forest policies within its administrative territories.

Myanmar Announces National Environment and Climate Change Policies

Mizzima, 6 June 2019

The Government of Myanmar yesterday announced its vision for the country’s environmental protection and climate action, launching two new policies that will guide Myanmar’s environmental management and climate change strategy, according to a UN Environment statement.

Myanmar is widely considered one of the most vulnerable countries in the world to the impacts of climate change, and its renowned biodiversity and natural resources are under increasing pressure as the country develops. More intense and more frequent floods, cyclones and droughts have caused immense loss of life and damage to infrastructure and the economy.

President U Win Myint announced the two new policies – the National Environmental Policy and the Myanmar Climate Change Policy – at an event marking World Environment Day in the capital. More than 400 attended the announcement, including senior government officials from Union ministries, states and regions and representatives from civil society, academic institutions, businesses and the international community, including the acting UN Resident Coordinator and EU Ambassador.

The new policies explicitly recognize the increasing threat of extreme weather and other climate change impacts to the country’s economic and social development and set out an ambition to transform Myanmar into a climate-resilient, low-carbon society that is sustainable, prosperous and inclusive.

They are a culmination of five years of work spearheaded by the Ministry of Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation (MoNREC) with support from UNDP and the Myanmar Climate Change Alliance, an effort funded by the European Union with technical support from UN Environment and UN-Habitat.

In the second phase of the project, which is scheduled for completion in September 2021, electricity will be supplied to villages within a 5-mile radius of the grid.

Schools Told Not to Enrol Students from Other Townships

Myanmar Times, 27 May 2018

Schools in Yangon have been instructed not to accept the enrolment of students from other townships during the coming school year, according to U Ko Lay Win, director general of the Department of Basic Education.

He said the same instruction was issued during last year’s enrolment but was not followed, so the department would be stricter in enforcing the regulation this year.

“There are parents who want to enrol their children at famous schools, and thus they pay teachers to get their children accepted. Issues arise. The instruction aims to avoid corruption," U Ko Lay Win said.

The department will inspect famous schools in Yangon and Mandalay.

Ko Hein Latt, the father of a 2nd grade student in Bahan, said, “If they won’t accept extra-township enrolment, we want to ask them whether teaching is the same in all schools. Are the schools safe? If all schools were the same, parents won’t enrol their children at schools in other townships. They would rather enrol them in their own township.”

School enrolment across the nation is taking place from now until Friday. School starts on June 3.

U Ko Lay Win said the inspection will be conducted without warning and at random.

But some said it will be difficult to detect the fraud, as parents fraudulently change their household registration to be able to enrol their children at famous schools.

President Urges Faster Reforms to Build Federal Union

Myanmar Times, 28 May 2018

Officials in the legislative, executive and judicial branches of government need to speed up reforms to build a federal union, President U Win Myint said.

He made the comment in a meeting with senior staff of government agencies, legislators and judicial officials last week to underscore the need to speed up reforms.

“Some are worried about reforms so they are hesitant and frightened (to implement them). Actually, reform is a good friend of the country,” he said.

U Win Myint said reforms pose no threat and are a good way to develop the country and the people’s happiness.

He said civil servants can heed the example of independence hero Bogyoke Aung San’s short-lived administration, which was anchored in justice.

“I want an administration like the one set by our national and military leader, and independence architect, Bogyoke Aung San. I want institutions that have political, economic and social justice,” he said.

The president reminded the officials that they have sacrificed much to have the chance to implement reforms.

“We have sacrificed and felt pain throughout our lives to reach this moment. We have to dutifully perform our duties for the next generation,” he said.

U Win Myint urged them to remain loyal to the country despite the difficulties they face.

“I understand civil servants have trouble paying for food and housing, but I want them to persevere and understand this situation. Some are expecting something and some are giving certain information to others. I am not talking about rumours. I know what is going on,” he added.

He directed department officials to implement the projects in cooperation with local legislators.

PEACE AND RECONCILIATION

NSCN-K will not Sign NCA – Official

Mizzima, 4 June 2019

The National Socialist Council of Nagaland-Khaplang (NSCN-K) is firm on not signing the Nationwide Ceasefire Agreement (NCA) with the Myanmar Army (Tatmadaw) in spite of 'repeated aggression' by Naypyidaw, News18 reported. According to NSCN-K, they want to continue their fight for 'sovereignty' of the Naga people.

Speaking to News18, the ministry of publicity (MIP) in-charge of NSCN (K) Joseph Lamkang, said, “Myanmar, in reality doesn’t care for the real aspiration of the Nagas. The seven years ceasefire only benefited them as it was one-sided. NSCN started to feel that we were at the receiving end of Myanmar government’s operations. In last three years, they have been aggressively forcing us to sign the NCA. But, we did not do so. Then they became aggressive at the negotiating table, stopped all our supply routes and have applied their famous ‘four cuts’ policy.’’

Lamkang added that Myanmar is well versed with the Naga issue, and they know that the subject is different from other ethnic issues. Lamkang remarked that Myanmar could have taken a different route rather than forcing the NCA on the Nagas.

Ceasefire Groups Meet to Discuss Future of PPST

Shan Herald Agency for News, 6 June 2019

The 10 NCA-signatory groups are expected to decide on whether or not to dissolve the Peace Process Steering Team.

Representatives of 10 ethnic armed organizations (EAOs) that have signed Burma’s Nationwide Ceasefire Agreement (NCA) are set to meet in Chiang Mai, Thailand, this week to decide on the future of the Peace Process Steering Team (PPST).

According to EAO sources, the gathering of NCA signatories will start today and continue until next Monday (June 5-10).

“Central executive committee members from 10 NCA-signatory EAOs are going to meet in Chiang Mai. One representative from each group will attend the meeting,” Khun Sai, an advisor to one of the groups, the Restoration Council of Shan State, told SHAN.

Khun Sai said that in addition to the issue of what to do about the PPST, the delegates will also discuss the NCA and whether to meet with members of the government’s National Reconciliation and Peace Center (NRPC), led by State Counsellor Aung San Suu Kyi.

The KNU first floated the idea of withdrawing from the Burma Army-recognized PPST and forming the PPCM during the first session of the fourth summit of NCA-signatory EAOs, held in Chiang Mai on May 14-18.

EAO leaders who attended that summit agreed to find common ground in their quest to overcome issues that have created a deadlock in the peace process.
