Five-year-old Mohamad plays on a tricycle in the house he lives with his parents, Almlihan Kanwan and Alghafor Isa, and his six siblings. The family of nine fled their village in Syria in 2018, when the eldest son was injured in a bombing. From Turkey they passed to the Greek island of Lesbos, where they stayed at Moria reception center before being settled in a rented apartment in Kallithea, provided by UNHCR's partner ARSIS as part of the EU funded ESTIA program.

Overview

By the end of October 2019, UNHCR had created 25,545 places in the accommodation scheme as part of the ESTIA programme. These were in 4,475 apartments and 14 buildings, in 14 cities and 7 islands across Greece.

The Accommodation Scheme¹ provides rented housing to vulnerable asylum-seekers and refugees in Greece. Urban accommodation helps restore a sense of normalcy and provides better access to services, including education and health. People are additionally supported by social workers and interpreters who help them access medical services, employment, language courses and recreational activities.

"When we first got into our apartment here in Livadia, it felt like we entered a castle. It felt like home again and even better if you think that our home in Syria was not safe anymore. In Livadia, we feel safe and free. Our children, Shero and Malak, attend school every day and Shero plays football in a local team. I hope that one day he'll be a great football player, like Lionel Messi. Livadia is now our home, a part of our lives. Even if we leave this place, we will definitely come back one day".
