Success story

Peter Peto, a 36-year-old male refugee from DRC, stays with his wife and daughter in Mayukwayukwa Refugee Settlement. Their livelihoods depend on crop and livestock production. He narrates how life was challenging for him prior to receiving support from UNHCR. He says: “Food was insufficient, and we were staying in a grass thatched hut which used to leak when it rains.” In 2020-2021 farming season, Peter received a solar powered drip irrigation system and seeds from UNHCR under the Lead Farmer Support Program. He planted the seed in his garden and used the solar powered drip irrigation system for irrigation. From this support, Peter had a good harvest from tomatoes, cabbages, maize, and beans. He sold his products and realized a profit of about K5,000 which he re-invested in his garden with an expansion in the crop diversity. He planted green beans, cabbages, okra, onions, tomatoes, Amaranthus and eggplants. Peter managed to realize a profit of K18,000 from his second harvest. He used part of this money to build a better house for his family and he says his life has greatly improved because of the support he received.
