

Overview

The continuing unrest in Myanmar may result in more individuals escaping persecution and generalized violence, many of whom may cross the border into Thailand to request international protection and assistance from UNHCR and other humanitarian agencies. The Education Sector comprised of 8 partners and led by Save the Children International continues with fundraising efforts for prepositioning and preparedness for a possible 4,000 Myanmar refugee influx, including home-based learning kits and temporary learning spaces, capacity building on Education in Emergencies, and Parental Education/ Positive Parenting.

Key Figures

* Funding shown only funding earmarked specifically to activities included in the appeal; does not reflect funding that some partners have received at broader levels of earmarking (country, subregional, regional)

Response

1,200 Home Based learning kits pre-positioned

47 Participants attending EiE and CSG in Emergency training

Save the Children International and humanitarian agencies (UNICEF, ADRA, Right to Play, HwF, JRS, Teacher Focus, SVA and Play Onside) at the national level continue to hold bi-weekly education sector meetings to coordinate preparedness activities, exchange information, discuss and update on education needs, existing and pipeline funding, capacity's and technical resources' gaps and needs, as well as strategies for interventions.

Fundraising continues to be done and the sector continues to receive regular emergency updates from the field education sectors in order to prepare and plan better for the possible response

Partner Operational Presence

Challenges

- Limited funding to the sector to respond to the needs of 4000 new arrivals
- It is still unclear whether individuals in need of protection can cross into an area where humanitarian agencies can access and provide protection and assistance
- Education is not prioritized as an urgent need by refugees
- COVID-19 crisis which has further complicated the Myanmar influx situation

Partners

ADRA, Jesuit Refugee Service, Help without Frontiers (HwF), Right To Play, Onside Thailand, Save the Children, Shanti Volunteer Association (SVA), Teacher Focus, UNICEF

Thank you for the generous donation from:

